The Spirit that creates all universals responds to acts of kindness with a response: How can I be kind to you? Dr. Wayne W. Dyer's Forgiveness | 398 Forgiving comments for others is essential for spiritual growth. Your experience of someone who has hurt you, while painful, is now nothing more than thoughts or feelings that you carry around. These thoughts of hatred, anger, and hatred represent a slow and debilitating energy that will empower you if you continue to let these thoughts occupy space in your head. If you can let them go, you will know more peace. Below I share how to forgive someone who has hurt you in 15 steps: Step 1: Proceed to the Next Act of your past history and all your wounds are no longer here in your physical reality. Don't let them be here in your mind, muddy your moments now. Your life is like playing with some action. Some incoming characters have short roles to play, others, much bigger. Some are criminals and others are good people. But everything is necessary, otherwise they will not play. Continue Reading Mindfulness Dr. Wayne W. Dyer Perhaps the most elusive space for humans to enter is the gap between our minds. When you try to clear your mind, usually the act of clearing your mind only leads to more thoughts. More Alignment Dr. Wayne W. Dyer While the world of reality has its limits, the world of your imagination is limitless. Learn to recognize the signs of how to become habitual, and then learn to shift your thinking to balance with your dreams. More Spirituality Dr. Wayne W. Dyer This shift towards seeing yourself as the infinite has human experience, rather than the other way around – that is, a human being who has the occasional spiritual experience – loaded with fear for most people. I urge you to look at those fears and deal with them firsthand now; the result will be a permanent connection to the abundance and reactivity of the universal source that means all Creations into temporary forms.
